Amount Requested: $1,500,000

The University's Thomas J. Watson School of Engineering and Applied Science will develop a display system would provide a highly accurate visual representation for Army aircrew coordination simulations training in dual seat cockpit aircraft environments.