

Amount Requested: $500,000

The Nation Textile Center is a research consortium of eight universities, including Cornell, that works to improve the competitiveness of the US fiber and textile industries through design of innovative materials, manufacturing processes, and integrated systems. The value of new textile products and processes that have been created by National Textile Center research is over $300 million.